GOV. YOUNG URGES PROPER ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE

"Lest Armistice Day degenerate into 'just another holiday' rather than the purposes for which legislation recognizing it as such was approved by Governor Young, a stirring message from the Governor has been sent to each of the American Legion Posts of the state by James K. Fisk, state adjutant of the World War veterans organization.

"This is a two year trial to determine whether such a holiday will prove a new and valuable means toward educating the boys and girls of California into higher ideals of patriotism," Governor Young declares in discussing his ideas on "Armistice Day."

His message to the California World War veterans sent through Adjutant Fisk, follows:

"Dear Mr. Fisk:—
 "I am particularly pleased at the opportunity presented, through you, to extend to the more than 300 Posts of the American Legion in California a word of greeting upon the ninth anniversary of the Armistice, November 11 of the current year.

"I know that it is the hope of the American Legion that Armistice Day may take on the characteristics which marked Independence Day in the times of our fathers and grandfathers; that it may not be merely a day of sport and entertainment, but that it may everywhere be marked by widely attended patriotic exercises, which will bring home to our people an ever-strengthened realization of the blessings of liberty which they enjoy.

"You will recall the assurances given by yourself and other officials of the Legion upon the occasion of my signing the bill which your organization sponsored, making Armistice Day a school holiday, that, if this new school holiday is given a fair trial and it is found that it does not work out to be a day of state-wide patriotic observance on the part of young and old alike, the Legion will take the lead in recommending that it be abolished and that it be supplanted by a renewal of regular school sessions with patriotic exercises in the schools. Accordingly, I welcome this occasion to suggest to the various units of the Legion their responsibility in their respective communities to see to it that the day is fittingly observed.

"This is a two year trial to determine whether such a holiday will prove a new and valuable means towards educating the boys and girls of California into higher ideals of patriotism. I trust that every citizen of California will co-operate towards this end, lest Armistice Day degenerate into 'just another holiday.' I earnestly hope that, under the guidance of the American Legion and other patriotic societies, Armistice Day may become a great national holiday devoted to patriotic observance, and of a nature to build up in the youth of our land high patriotic ideals.

"Very sincerely yours,
 "C. C. YOUNG,
 "Governor of California."

Travel Notes of Interest and Western Highway Information Furnished by the National Automobile Club

The trip to "Old Baldy", a round-topped mountain rearing far above the timberline, is an ever popular one day outing, according to information received from the Touring Department of the National Automobile Club. The summit of Mt. San Antonio, which has long been informally known as "Mt. Baldy" is reached by hiking and saddle trails. Its barren top is marked by a sign which reads, "Mt. San Antonio, Old Baldy, elevation 10,900 feet." A register is found here in a metal box located on a stand, bearing the names of those who have conquered the climb. From this point, on clear days, inspiring views may be had of valley, desert and the entire San Gabriel range. A wide, smooth mountain road, without any difficult grades leads well up on the slope of Mt. San Antonio. While second gear work is necessary in places, the trip on the whole is a very easy pleasant one. Two hiking trails lead from Camp Baldy to the summit. One leads to the left and is seven and one-half miles in length, following in part a very sharp zig-zag course while the other is two miles longer, but less difficult to negotiate. It leads across the Devil's Backbone, over a mountain ridge from which the hiker may look down for hundreds of feet to canyon or desert. This portion of the trail is very spectacular and offers thrills to even the most courageous. Further on the trail leads to a broad flat mesa which is a veritable forest of towering pines, thickly covered with soft, fragrant pine needles. It is possible to drive beyond Manker Flats, a distance of 4 miles north of Camp Baldy but the road is somewhat steep in places. The old dirt road which connects the Camp Baldy road to Palmer Canyon is rough and chunky at the present time.

With cooler weather, fishing conditions are constantly improving in the lakes and streams near Bishop, Calif. The water is clear and lower and morning fishing is better than at any time during the season. Rush, Levee, and Reverse creeks as well as June, Gull, Silver, Grant and Gem Lakes are very popular at this time. The best bait is Troutorero and spinners—best fly—Black Gnat, Coachman and Professor. Good deer hunting is now to be had in this district and ducks are plentiful.

Motorists in Los Angeles county are warned by the legal department of the National Automobile Club that they must observe the county laws with reference to the prohibition of smoking in restricted areas. This law applies to all smoking, regardless of whether it is in a car or otherwise. On a recent Sunday there were fifty arrests made on the Ridge route alone for this offense. This wholesale arrest and the assessment of fines following, should impress the motoring public with the necessity of observing this law. All restricted areas are sign posted and motorists should govern themselves accordingly, as the law is being strictly enforced.

The paved wide route along the hilltops of Turnbull Canyon offers motorists a short trip of distinctiveness attractiveness, for from the higher elevations may be viewed wide vistas of rare beauty and a vast panorama including fertile valleys and, in the winter months, the snow-crowned mountains. Turnbull Canyon is reached either by way of Whittier boulevard and Painter avenue leading from Whittier, or via Pomona boulevard and 10th street leading from Puente, and extends for about nine miles between Whittier and Pomona boulevards. Travel in high gear may be had over the smooth, curving pavement of the canyon road and a portion of this trip lies along the hilltops from whence beautiful views are had of the deep valley and hillsides covered with fruit groves. One of the largest avocado groves in the world is located on the north side of the summit of Turnbull Canyon and the view of the many terraced hillsides, with a background of mountains is one of rare beauty. On the downgrade portion of the trip, many trees frame the road and during the season, ferns are found in abundance as well as numerous wild flowers. According to the history of early pioneering days, this canyon was the scene of many small battles between posses and bandit forces and several notorious bad men were captured in this beautiful gap in the hills. Turnbull Canyon was once part of the holding of "Lucky Baldwin", included in his 30,000 acre Rancho Puente. Speeding through this canyon is a source of great danger for numerous turns are to be found. While these turns are protected by white fences, motorists should sound horns and slow down somewhat before negotiating them.

On the inland route between Los Angeles and San Diego, road work is now completed between Perris and Elsinore, and several short detours which were in effect for some time have now been eliminated. All drains have now been repaired through Temescal Canyon and the detour at Lee Lake will soon be eliminated as the bridge is almost completed at that point.

On the Coast Highway between Los Angeles and San Diego, the road is under construction from a point eight miles north of San Juan Capistrano to a point 5 miles north of the city. Two detours are in evidence and one-way traffic in two places, but no delays will be experienced.

Much of Sepulveda boulevard through San Fernando valley is now finished. Construction work is being pushed rapidly. This boulevard shortens the distance between points in the northern part of San Fernando Valley and from San Joaquin Valley to the Los Angeles Harbor and beach areas by practically 12 miles and affords safer and more rapid transportation by avoidance of the congested streets and districts of the Los Angeles City metropolitan centers. Traversing valley, mountain pass, wooded land and open mesa, busy towns and cities, cultivated fields, play grounds of country clubs, and skirting the campuses of the University of California and Occidental colleges, this boulevard is an important connecting link with the prosperous north and equally prosperous and fast developing south. The average grade, even through the hills, and mountains, is very low, and the numbers of curves small. This natural thoroughfare with its straight course and easy grades was once the artery over which the pioneer Spaniard transported his wheat and hides on ox carts to the old wharf at Santa Monica Bay from the rich upper valleys. It required only the hand of the modern highway builder to make this thoroughfare provided by nature into a beautiful, unique and commercially necessary highway.

The road from the Coast Highway to Modjeska's Home through El Toro is of good macadam to El Toro, followed by a good wide dirt road for about 6 miles, thence fair dirt with 10 to 12% grades to Modjeska's Home.

On the road from Santa Margarita to Bakersfield, a good winding mountain road leads over the Pozo Mountains to Pozo, followed by fair dirt to La Panza. From this point a very rough dirt road is had across the Carrisa Plains to the summit of Temblor Hills, followed by a good gravel to McKittrick and pavement to Bakersfield. It is advisable to carry chains at this season of the year.

GOOD LOOKS MUST BE EARNED

What she eats and what she is, does not have to be asked of the growing girl who eats normally. Healthful habits become stamped on the face as "prima facie" evidence.

"I won't be fat" and "I want to be thin" are common rebellious comments against the dictates of healthful nature from the "teen age."

Wrong standards of beauty and health, comely slenderness and homely skinniness, have become confused. "Finnicky" and inadequate eating, erroneously called "dainty", are the cause of much of the recent increase in debility of the adolescent girl who starves herself for "beauty's sake." Without a same knowledge of how to eat for health, she will only fool herself, but not nature. Nature gets even in time, even if she has to take it out on the skin. Poor eating often shows in a sallow muddy complexion.

Radiant health cannot build on the "no breakfast habit" or that of coffee and doughnuts. Fruit, cereals, milk and toast are as necessary for an adequate breakfast at this second great growth period as during earlier childhood. Milk cocoa can be used sometimes instead of plain milk; nut and raisin bread for toast; and raisins and dates in cereals. Generous use of fresh fruit adds minerals and the valuable zest to the appetite, which is often lacking from insufficient sleep and outdoor exercise. Continued lunches of "sundaes" and rich pastry are detrimental to good looks. A lunch of cream vegetable soup, sandwich of date and cheese, glass of milk and baked pear satisfy both the appetite and the health program. Rich desserts and heavy salad dressings are not desirable. Calories are needed, especially for the girl athlete. Foods rich in calories such as dried fruits in puddings, fats in ice creams and chocolate malted milks, eggs and cheese dishes with macaroni and rice are helpful.

The best growing food, milk, must always be included in the diet. A quart a day is ideal. The need in vitamins and minerals continues great, especially the iron. Eggs and green vegetables are essential.

Dainty dishes attract this age, and learning how to prepare them often lures the girl to eat them. Achieving a reputation for crisp salads, frozen desserts, creamy hot chocolate and even plain finger bread often leads to interest in food habits. Learning how to plan balanced menus at school is an incentive to try them at home.

A clear skin, an erect, healthy body and a wholesome attitude toward work and play are undoubt-
